

About the Enterprise Engagement Alliance

The Enterprise Engagement Alliance (EEA) is a recently formed coalition of companies and associations dedicated to the concept that engagement is an enterprise-wide endeavor that "begins with people and ends with profitability." The EEA's primary mission is to support research, education and outreach that creates a better understanding of how organizations can make the connection between engaging people in business and long-term financial performance. The EEA is founded on the premise that the engagement of all of an organization's key audiences – customers, distribution partners and employees – is a critical but often overlooked success factor for businesses.

The Enterprise Engagement Alliance was founded in 2008 by the Human Capital Institute, a 140,000-member organization dedicated to talent management; global business consultancy Peppers & Rogers Group and their independent publishing division, 1to1[®] Media; and Selling Communications, Inc., a provider of engagement marketing services, media and technology. The EEA's first research project, "The Economics of Engagement" was released in June 2009 and is available at: EnterpriseEngagement.org

Topics Covered

Enterprise Engagement comprises a variety of inter-related disciplines that foster alignment with people across the organization. Enterprise Engagement includes such disciplines as:

- Leadership
- Communications (web, face-to-face, print, presentations, etc.)
- Training
- Rewards & Recognition
- Incentives
- Loyalty Programs
- Compensation
- Motivation
- Technology

Resources and Activities

The Enterprise Engagement Alliance provides the following services, most of which can be sponsored by organizations that supply information, products and services on all areas of Engagement.

- Creation of the Enterprise Engagement Index[™] (EEA) and Personal Engagement Index[™] (PEI) for organizations and individuals. The EEI enables organizations to take a quick snapshot of and correlate the level of engagement in various parts of their organization, including customers, channel partners, salespeople, and customer service, operations, and administrative personnel. The PEI enables individuals to track their own engagement. Coming January 2010.

- Support research on various areas of Enterprise Engagement.

- Creation of the National Recognition Portal, where people can thank anyone they wish—a company, boss, or employee, or service provider—for great service. All qualified entries are entered each month into a sweepstakes for attention-getting prizes. Launching February 2010.

- The EnterpriseEngagement.org portal to all available information on Enterprise Engagement from all credible sources.

- An expert help-desk for people seeking information, research, or resources related to any area of Enterprise Engagement.

- Webinars on research, case studies and how-to information related to Enterprise Engagement.

- The ability for businesspeople, academics and students to opt in to receiving notifications of new content, research and services (if desired).

- The ability for businesspeople and academics to post white papers, research and other content on the portal or to be published in Enterprise Engagement, subject to approval by the editorial board.

- An annual conference and expo on Enterprise Engagement held annually in the spring.

- A quarterly print publication, Engagement Strategies Magazine; an online magazine at EngagementStrategiesOnline.com.

- A directory of suppliers dedicated to providing Engagement services.
